About Your Report

Your MBTI® Personal Impact Report is designed to help you make use of your MBTI results so that you can better understand yourself and others and improve the interactions in your daily life and work.

The MBTI assessment is based on the work of Carl Jung and was developed by Isabel Briggs Myers and Katharine Briggs to identify 16 different personality types that help explain differences in how people take in information and make decisions about it. Your report will show you how your personality type is distinct from other types and how it influences the way you perceive, communicate, and interact.

This Report Can Help You

• Improve communication and teamwork as you gain awareness of the personality differences you see in others
• Work more effectively with those who may approach problems and decisions very differently than you do
• Navigate your work and personal relationships with more insight and effectiveness
• Understand your preferences for learning and work environments and the activities and work you most enjoy doing
• More successfully manage the everyday conflicts and stresses that work and life may bring

As you read your report, bear in mind that personality type is a nonjudgmental system that looks at the strengths and gifts of individuals. All preferences and personality types are equally valuable and useful. Based on decades of research and development, the MBTI assessment is the world’s most widely and universally used tool for understanding normal, healthy personality differences among people everywhere, opening up opportunities for growth and development.
Your Myers-Briggs® Personality Type

The questions on the MBTI assessment are designed to show which preference in each of the four pairs of opposites you favor. The type you identified as fitting you best is shown below.

Your Decision-Making Style

The information below is intended to help you see the impact of your personality preferences on your decision-making style.

It is important to remember that all personality types and decision-making styles are equally valuable and that no one type can be characterized as the best decision maker. Use this information to learn about and appreciate your natural style and acquire strategies to make both your individual and group decision making more successful and comprehensive.

ENTP DECISION-MAKING STYLE HIGHLIGHTS

Perceptive, adaptable, and clever, ENTPs work well when they can take on challenges, improvise conceptual frameworks, and rally others to conquer issues strategically. They bring an inventive spirit to entrepreneurial endeavors, embrace change and innovation, and see ways of doing things that are not immediately obvious. During decision making ENTPs typically want to know, “What is the most intriguing choice?”*

Your Decision-Making Strengths

- Bringing energy and enthusiasm to considering how a decision can be tackled
- Engaging others at the outset to obtain varied opinions on the issue
- Using imagination to envision a vast array of options
- Being able to look at things creatively and consider unusual or nontraditional ideas
- Developing decisions that anticipate the future and allow for adaptation
- Questioning whether a decision is logical and reasonable
- Taking the initiative to get things moving with vigor and zest
- Allowing people to work independently and in their own way
- Thinking in terms of how processes and outcomes can be improved
- Comparing the success of the decision strategies used against other possible strategies

Potential Challenges During Decision Making

- Failing to see the value of using a structured decision-making process
- Spending more time asking questions than thinking things through
- Being so engrossed in brainstorming that you abandon the original topic
- Resisting options that are traditional or common
- Ignoring standards, seeking change for its own sake
- Overlooking a decision's effect on relationships
- Losing interest once implementation seems established
- Assuming that once the decision has been made people need no further guidance
- Failing to recognize how well a decision delivered practical results
- Getting sidetracked by interpreting outcomes in “win-lose” terms

Suggestions for Developing Your Decision-Making Style

- Understand that creating a basic plan may make the journey more successful
- Remember to take time to explore opinions in depth
- Recognize that the goal is to find the best option for each specific situation
- Remember that just because something has been used before, it isn’t necessarily outdated
- Realize that people are more receptive to trying something new when it is tied to the familiar
- Recognize that considering people’s feelings is a rational means to craft better decisions
- Accept that success often demands sustained effort
- Pause to check for understanding—others may require specifics and details
- Appreciate that if a decision was effective, no further changes may be needed
- Realize that learning can be achieved regardless of success or failure
Enhancing Your Decision-Making Capability

Understanding and applying personality type concepts can help you make better decisions. Sound decisions use both kinds of perception—Sensing and Intuition—in order to gather all useful information and both kinds of judgment—Thinking and Feeling—to ensure that all factors have been weighed. Because we naturally prefer one particular kind of perception and one kind of judgment, we are likely to focus on our preferred ways and overlook the positive contributions of our nonpreferred ways.

Isabel Briggs Myers believed that the best way to make a decision is to use all four of these preferences deliberately and in a specific order. This decision-making sequence is shown below.

1. Use Sensing to define the problem
2. Use Intuition to consider all the possibilities
3. Use Thinking to weigh the consequences of each course of action
4. Use Feeling to weigh the alternatives

Your preferences are highlighted in the graphic. Follow the steps, noting the important questions to ask at each stage. After completing the process, you should be able to make and act on a final decision. At an appropriate point after implementation, be sure to evaluate the results by reviewing your consideration of the facts, possibilities, impacts, and consequences.

Sensing to Define the Problem

- What are the facts?
- What have you or others done to resolve this or similar problems?
- What has worked or not worked?
- What resources do you have available?

Intuition to Consider the Possibilities

- What other ways are there to look at this?
- What do the data imply?
- What are the connections to larger issues or other people?
- What theories address this kind of problem?

Thinking to Weigh the Consequences

- What are the pros and cons of each option?
- What are the logical consequences of each?
- What are the consequences of not deciding and acting?
- What impact would deciding on each option have on other priorities?
- Would this option apply equally and fairly to everyone?

Feeling to Weigh the Alternatives

- How does each alternative fit with my values?
- How will the people involved be affected?
- How will each option contribute to harmony and positive interactions?
- How can I support people with this decision?

Suggestions for Developing Your Leadership Style

- Inquiry over advocacy. Learn to ask about and explore others’ ideas, rather than demonstrating the value of your position or your own abilities. This skill will help offset your tendency to argue your points until others give in or give up.

- Patience. Learn patience and suspend judgments about others, especially when they don’t grasp what you are saying. Take a breath and wait. Give others time to process concepts in their own way before proceeding.
Your Conflict Style

Your MBTI results shed light on how you typically approach and deal with conflict.

Incorporating type awareness and an understanding of your natural style can help you be better prepared to more effectively and sensitively approach, communicate during, and resolve conflict situations.

ENTP CONFLICT STYLE HIGHLIGHTS

ENTPs have a high tolerance for what others see as conflict, viewing it in most instances as healthy debate. However, when either they are feeling tested by another person or they are unsettled by strong emotions, such debate can become conflict for them. As ENTPs are verbally fluent, they are often perceived as playing the devil's advocate. People admire this when they perceive it as clarifying and dislike it when they see it as sparring.

Your Strengths in Managing Conflict

- Being an ingenious problem solver who readily offers alternative ways forward
- Being comfortable living with the ambiguity and uncertainty that conflict can create
- Being willing to take risks unfettered by popular thinking and to ask difficult questions of anyone in pursuit of clarity

What You Need from Others

- Acceptance of your verbal jousting and desire to bend the rules
- Tolerance of your need to subsequently analyze what has happened and perhaps reopen what others presume has been completed and is closed
- An environment in which neither you nor anyone else is judged until all have had their say
How Others Tend to See You

- Assertive, enthusiastic, and objective
- Following your own agenda and wanting to win the argument, thereby creating conflict, according to some; others simply see you as logically debating the pros and cons of a situation
- When you are under stress: someone who lives in a tornado of uncontrollable energy and is excessively critical and sarcastic, leaving a trail of destruction in your wake

Suggestions for Developing Your Conflict Style

- Adapt your style to accommodate those who want to be listened to and not given answers
- Remember that the longer a conflict goes on, the more people will feel uneasy about it, even though your understanding of it may be becoming clearer
- Keep in mind that not everyone is as clever as you are and that conflict is not always about winning
- Recognize that some people see you as a conflict generator because of the level of debate you engage in and your willingness to keep exploring options

- Becoming rigid, controlling
